Master Class in Reproductive Surgery for Infertility

8th January 2010

Southmead Hospital, Bristol

Overview

Surgery for pelvic disease and tubal damage is widely practiced and can improve the fertility of women. However, with the increasing availability and success of IVF treatment, the opportunities for learning the skills required for such surgery, including reversal of sterilisation operations are limited.

This masterclass delivered by renowned experts intends to raise awareness of valuable techniques that will improve your skills and improve reproductive outcome. The course features interactive presentations, laparoscopic and hands on skills training.

Course Organisers (for the BFS training committee):

- Valentine Akande & Luciano Nardo

Aim of the meeting

- Update your knowledge the surgical treatment options available for infertile women
- Learn about the patient selection
- Learn about the principles of tubal microsurgery
- Understand the place of laparoscopic surgery for treating pelvic disease
- Undertake relevant simulated practical skills training

Who should attend?

- Consultants with a special interest in infertility
- Subspecialty trainees in reproductive medicine
- Trainees undertaking their ATSM in Subfertility and Reproductive Endocrinology
- Gynaecologists in the independent sector wishing to update their skills
